RosieKnits Presents...

skill level: intermediate

Wind's Poem Cowl

designed by
Jenna Wilbur

A drapey, silky cowl that feels light as the wind, but packs a toasty punch. The slipped-stitch and yarn-over pattern creates a multi-directional affect to compliment the hand-dyed yarn.

Materials:

Misti Hand Paint Suri & Silk (80% Baby Suri Alpaca, 20% silk; 218 yards/100 grams) 1 skein
US 7 (4.5mm) 24" circular needles (gauge is not essential for this project)

Finished Measurments:

8" tall, 13.5" wide (laid flat)

Directions:

Note: your stitch count will vary each round. After a slipped-stitch round, you will have 120 stitches. After a yarn-over round, the count will be restored to 144 stitches.

Cast on 144 stitches. Join for working in the round, being careful not to twist stitches, placing marker for beginning of round. Work in garter stitch (knit one round, purl one round) for 5 ridges, ending with a purl round. Knit one round.

Begin working in pattern stitch as follows:
Round 1: slip 1, k2, pass slipped stitch over 2 knit stitches, k3, repeat to end of round.
Round 2: k1, yo, k5, yo, repeat to end of round, ending with k4.
Round 3: k3, slip 1, k2, pass slipped stitch over 2 knit stitches, repeat to end of round.
Round 4: k4, yo, k5, yo, repeat to end of round, ending with k1.

Repeat the four pattern rounds until piece measures 7" from cast-on edge (approx. 13-14 repeats). Knit 1 round. Work in garter stitch for 4 ridges, ending with a knit round. Bind off purl-wise. Weave in ends. Steam cowl lightly for drape and evenness.

© 2009 Rosie Knits. Not to be reproduced, re-knit or taught for profit.